- 11: Mk-54 SADM (Small Atomic Demolition Munitions). Weighs 68 kg and looks like a large internal frame reinforced backpack and has a yield of 1.221 Kilotons (1d6 X 10 MD using Dead Boy’s Method 6:Mega Damage to Powers of TNT Conversion) However this weapon produces a very dangerous 500 rem radiation exposure at 500 meters from burst point, and a 100% lethal 1350 rem exposure at 300 meters. (400-600 REMS:Mortality rises steeply in this dose range, from around 50% at 450 rems to 90% at 600 (unless heroic medical intervention takes place). Hematopoietic tissues remain the major affected organ system. Initial symptoms appear in 0.5-2 hours, and last up to 2 days. The latency period remains 7-14 days. The symptoms listed for 200-400 rems increase in prevalence and severity, reaching 100% occurrence at 600 rems. When death occurs, it is usually 2-12 weeks after exposure and results from infection and hemorrhage. Recovery takes several months to a year, blood cell counts may take even longer to return to normal. Female sterility becomes probable.
- 12: Pre-Rifts Bi-Power Hand-cannon: this hybrid handgun mates a double-action .44 Magnum revolver to a .45 ACP autoloader. The sturdy grip holds 13 rounds of .45-caliber ammo in a double-column magazine, feeding into the upper portion of the gun. The automatic's long slide ends in a compensator, but (because it's built into the frame beneath the barrel of the automatic and ahead of the trigger assembly) the revolver's barrel is somewhat snubby. "R" (revolver) mode or "A" (automatic) mode can be selected at the flip of a thumb-switch. The Bi-Power rarely malfunctions. The Bi-Power's worst problem is its size—packing a .45 auto with an 8.5" barrel and a .44 Magnum wheel-gun into one-package makes this hand-cannon Pretty Big.
